

Warm Up Sheet

Teacher: Print enough copies to provide one list per group. Cut the list up, and place the 14 pieces in a bag. Hand one bag per group.

	Freedom of religion, Freedom of speech, Freedom of the press, Freedom of assembly
	The right to keep and bear arms
	No soldier shall, in time of peace, stay in your house without consent of the Owner
	Freedom from “unreasonable searches and seizures”. States need a search warrant.
	You have due process rights (before being charged with a crime, a grand jury must agree there is enough evidence to send you to trial). You do not have to say anything that could make you seem guilty.
	You have a right to a fair, quick trial, decided by a jury of your peers. You have a right to a lawyer.
	Right to a trial by jury in some lawsuits
	Freedom and protection from excessive bail, fines, and cruel and unusual punishments
	Just because certain rights are not explicitly written in the Constitution, does not mean it can be denied to the people
	The federal government has power that States or the Constitution gave to it. (If it is not assigned to the federal government, then the power is given to the states)
	The states cannot be sued by people who live in other states or countries.
	Rules about how the President and Vice President are elected
	Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime [...], shall exist in the United States.
	All persons born or naturalized in the U.S. [...] are citizens of the U.S. [and no State shall] deprive any person of life, liberty, or property, without due process of law; nor deny to any person [...] the equal protection or the laws.
